

WRA Elections Wed.

The Women's Residence Association will hold its next executive committee posts elections Wednesday.

Nineteen women candidates for the six posts were presented at a mass meeting of the WRA last Monday evening in the gym.

The candidates for President are Shari Cooper and Margie Lenz; Vice President, Phyllis Hyman, Sonia Jacobs, Linda Robinson and Donna Davis; Corresponding Secretary, Charlene Claye, Barbara Kapi and Berni Rubin.

For Recording Secretary, Arlene Blatt, Lori Klein and Sherrie Wolfe; Treasurer, Barbara Hoffman, Trudy Jaffee, Joann Snopkoski and Gail Sullivan; and for Student Council Representative, Judith Fekete, Joan Friedland and Donna Spencer.

Ethics Violation Notice

The Office of Student Personnel announced this week that students who committed an ethics violation prior to March 15, the date when the new ethics legislation went into effect, and who now commit a second violation will be subject to the new legislation's penalty for a second offense, which is possible suspension or expulsion from the University.

Under the recently passed ethics rules, a first offense draws a penalty of "F" in the course and a second offense is punishable by suspension or expulsion from the University.

Prior to the new ethics regulations, a first offense resulted in a letter grade drop and a zero on the exam. A second offense drew a penalty of an "F" in the course and a third offense could mean suspension or expulsion from the University.

In making the announcement, Dean Alfred R. Wolff said he wanted to warn students who had committed a first violation prior to the date when the new rules went into effect that they would be subject to the new ethics rules if found guilty of committing a second offense.

Painting Exhibit April 9, 10

"Artists of Today," an exhibit of paintings done by members of the University's art department and Fairfield County artists, will be held next Thursday and Friday in the Student Center for the benefit of the Dr. Helen M. Scurr Scholarship fund.

The exhibit is under the sponsorship of the University's Women's Club and the chairmanship of Mrs. James H. Halsey. All paintings in the exhibit will be for sale with commissions to benefit the Scurr Scholarship fund.

In explaining the theme of the exhibit, Mrs. Halsey cited it as "an excellent opportunity to meet with and view the works of rising young artists as well as to participate in a worthwhile scholarship project."

On The Council Front: Only Two Seek Office of President; Nominations Reopened Until Tomorrow

The Student Council Elections Committee has extended the deadline for accepting applications for president and vice-president of the Council until 3 p.m. tomorrow because of what it feels is a lack of candidates.

Three students have applied for vice-president and two for president.

Linda Lerner, current Council vice-president, explained that three students had applied for both offices before the deadline originally set for March 19. One student submitting a nomination for president was disqualified for academic reasons.

counting, John Kehl, an Arnold College major, and Stephen Rosen, a sophomore accounting major, seeking the vice presidential office and Don Benson, a sophomore in the College of Business Administration, and John Harm, running for president.

To qualify for the office of Council President a student must be a full-time junior or senior day student in good standing and must have at least at 2.35 cumulative Q.P.R. at the time of candidacy among other qualifications contained in the Council constitution.

Because there were only two students running for president, Miss Lerner said that the Elections Committee which she heads had extended the deadline.

The committee was seeking more candidates in order to "increase school spirit through a more enthusiastic campaign and election," she added.

"It is possible that there just aren't any more students interested in running for Student Council," Miss Lerner said. "It is unfortunate in that we are not training leaders—students who are capable of taking positions and doing a good job."

"Something is wrong," she continued. "Many students have the latent ability to lead, but nothing is being done to bring this ability out."

The Council had a similar problem with its elections two years ago. Jerry M. Feldman was handed the Council Presidency when no student came forward to oppose him. Robert Rogoff and Irv Silverman were the only candidates for vice president. The deadline for applications was not extended.

Last year the application deadline was extended. However, Linda Lerner, candidate for vice president had no opponents and assumed her position automatically. The extension did produce three presidential candidates, William Marschall, Peter Zawacki, and Gerald Webber. A spirited and hotly-contested election made Webber Council President.

Resignation Amendment Passed

The Student Council yesterday passed an amendment making the automatic dismissal from Council the penalty for a Council member's conviction of any ethics violation. The vote was 23 to 2.

The amendment, introduced three weeks ago by Paul Diana, Student Council representative from the College of Arts and Sciences, states that if a Student Council member "commits and is convicted of any ethical violation, the resultant penalty will be automatic dismissal from the Council only for the semester when the infraction was committed." The newly-passed amendment, however, makes the dismissal effective for the remainder of the academic year in which the violation was committed, instead of one semester.

The proposed amendment was seconded by William Marschall, Student Council treasurer, but had to be again seconded two weeks ago by Linda Lerner, in accordance with constitutional regulations.

In introducing the amendment, which is similar to the two defeated by a wide margin last semester, Diana told Council members that it was "important for members of the Student Council to set a good example of proper leadership and they should not hide behind the authority of their offices."

Diana's amendment differs from the amendments defeated last semester only in that it calls for "automatic dismissal rather than "impeachment" or "mandatory resignation" from Council.

Rick Campagnano, Diana's predecessor as College of Arts and Sciences representative, introduced the first amendment which demanded the impeachment of a Student Council member convicted of an ethics violation. This amendment was defeated by a 3-11 vote.

On the same day a variation of Campagnano's amendment, which would have made resignation from Council mandatory within a week after an ethics violation, was defeated by a 4-11 vote.

The major argument against the first two amendments at that time was that consideration of the rulings questioned the integrity of Student Council members.

Doolittle Rejects OSR Requests Asking Supreme Court Council Review

By Bill Ahearn

Attempts by Omega Sigma Rho fraternity to have the Inter-Fraternity Council's Supreme Court Council convene for the purpose of reviewing the punishment handed down last week to OSR by the IFC Court Council met with failure this week.

Richard Doolittle, director of Student Activities and advisor to the IFC, rejected two petitions of protest from OSR. The first petition of protest was submitted last Friday to Doolittle. The second petition, consisting of an alteration to one of the first petition's points and the addition of two new points, was submitted late Tuesday afternoon to Doolittle.

Doolittle, who said that he, as the Supreme Court Council's Chief Justice, has the power to convene the court, explained that he felt the OSR petitions of protest and their points did not merit a convening of the court.

In its first petition, OSR presents five points of "exposition and protest" asking that the Supreme Court Council convene in order to reconsider what it labels as the "totally unjust" decision handed down by the IFC Council Court.

The decision rendered by the IFC Court was that OSR was guilty of "acting irresponsibly and showing unbecoming conduct at a social function." The function was a mixer held by OSR and Beta Gamma sorority and the IFC found the fraternity guilty of not stopping supposed acts of exhibitionism by three OSR fraternity members and of allowing vulgar language to be used at the function. The IFC Court handed down a penalty of two semesters of social probation and denial of this spring's pledge class and this was approved by the Office of Student Personnel.

In commenting on the two petitions, Doolittle said, "Omega Sigma Rho fraternity received all their IFC constitutional privileges and their IFC constitutional rights. Everything done as far as procedure at the IFC Council Court hearing last week followed the precedent that had been set for all previous IFC hearings that I am aware of."

In answering each of the first petition's points, Doolittle said that he considers point one, subscript b, as the only one possessing some validity. Under this point, OSR claims that the seating of the president of Beta Gamma sorority violated the IFC Constitution which specifies that only IFC representatives and alternates may be seated on the IFC Court.

He said, however, that at the hearing this point was brought up and that IFC President Mike Churilla, who presided over the court, asked OSR to allow the BG president to sit on the court and that the representatives from OSR agreed to do so. Doolittle pointed out that the presidents of Beta Rho Sigma fraternity and Alpha Delta Omega fraternity were also on the court but that OSR did not object to their presence.

"Considering the fact that OSR had the attempt to challenge the seating of the Beta Gamma president but waived it. I don't feel that this point is really valid," Doolittle said.

On point one, subscript a, Doolittle explained that OSR is correct in saying that the IFC cannot give a penalty of more than two semesters social probation and/or a monetary fine, but he said the IFC can and has in the past recommended to the Office of Student Personnel that a fraternity be denied a pledge class and that in the case with OSR, such a recommendation was made and approved by Student Personnel.

On point two, which cites the presentation at the hearing of charges against OSR from "undisclosed sources," Doolittle said that it is practice at all court trials on campus that the accusers not meet the accused. He specifically cited the Ethics and Discipline Committee which does not allow the accuser to face the accused.

He explained that the executive committee had decided before the hearing not to ask the six members of Beta Gamma sorority who had signed charges against OSR to appear before the trial. Doolittle said the committee felt an appearance by the women would have caused them undue pressure and embarrassment and that the committee instead accepted their signed statements which they submitted following questioning by him.

In answer to point three, which questions the right of the president of Beta Gamma to sit on the court because testimony was solicited from Beta Gamma, Doolittle said the chairman of the court, who determines court procedure, had decided to allow the Beta Gamma president to have a vote.

Doolittle called the last protest point in which OSR claims its opportunity to defend itself was "truncated" in consideration of the time element "totally unfounded and totally untrue." He said the IFC Constitution allows a minimum of three days for notification of charges to the accused before trial, and that OSR was given this. "In addition, they were asked at the hearing for any further statements which they might want to present and they did not give any," Doolittle said.

In the second petition of protest which OSR submitted, a subscript c was added to point three. The addition claims that OSR was denied the privilege of being seated on the Council Court.

Some Day...

The Student Council finds itself this semester in almost the same situation in which it was two years ago: too few candidates for its two top positions.

To say that this is a disgusting example of the apathetic attitude of the students at this University would be putting it mildly. Apparently, the office of President of Student Council does not attract the interest of the student body, probably because there are so few who have the strength to pick up the challenge which the office represents.

The office is not an easy one to hold. It is, among other things, time consuming, physically and mentally exhausting, depressing, frustrating and complicated. But the rewards it offers far outweigh and outnumber any of its difficulties.

Extracurricular activities on this campus and any campus—from the Student Council to the Sailing Club—offer their participants something which so many members of this University's student body obtain little of: self-growth. The intensive work and decision-making which an office like the Council Presidency extends, promotes an individual's growth in many ways, much of which cannot be obtained from within the confines of a classroom.

But so many members of this student body limit themselves while on this campus. They sit back, criticize because they can do no more and because they possess neither the initiative nor the desire to do better. They go to classes, cram their studies, find a place to hang out while not in a classroom and have the nerve to call themselves students when in reality they are the epitome of nothing but shallowness.

But some day there will be a type of student on this campus who does care about things other than those which affect only his social or economic status, a type of student who has the intelligence, strength, ability and desire to seek self-accomplishment and knowledge. Some day, the shallow ones will learn. Some day they will be made aware of the magnitude of the world around them instead of the trivial one in which they have so capably and unequivocally entrapped themselves, and for which they lack the courage and desire needed to lift their narrow horizons upwardly, outwardly, and, more importantly, inwardly. Some day, yes some day . . . we hope it will come soon for the benefit of the campus and those on this campus who are students and who care, but who unfortunately find themselves caught in a University community where many of its inhabitants abuse the privilege of being called a student and in many cases even an adult.

A Correction

An editorial reprinted from the "Colorado Daily" concerning the recently defeated "suspicious file" appeared in last week's Scribe.

One sentence in the reprinted editorial was accidentally allowed to enter the editorial columns without our realizing that it was inaccurate. The sentence cited the file as "an early warning system to enable professors to spot likely cheaters". This is incorrect. The file would not have been accessible to professors, but only to members of the Office of Student Personnel as was cited in all previous Scribe stories concerning the file and in a February Scribe editorial.

The fault for not catching the inaccuracy and for allowing it to appear in a reprint was ours; the inaccuracy itself is the "Daily's."

Letters To The Editor

TO THE EDITOR:

The 'Hello' campaign reminds students that:

H-is for the happiness you can bring to yourself and the happiness you can bring to others.

E-is for the end you can put to the growing apathetic atmosphere on our campus.

L-is for the large amount of participation that is needed to make this campaign successful. A handful of friendly people can't do too much.

L-is for the little amounts of time and effort that are needed from every student and teacher.

O-is for the overwhelming, overall effect it can have on everyone. You can bring about a friendlier, more spirited campus.

You'll be happy; you can end apathy; everyone must participate; it takes only a little and you can do a great deal; you'll be happy with the overall effect. Say hello to the people you see.

"HELLO CAMPAIGN" COMMITTEE, STUDENT COUNCIL

TO THE EDITOR:

In most fairy tales, at the end of the story everyone lives happily ever after; however, in U.B.s scandals when a representative of the administration disparages the student by his consistent choice of emotionally-toned context, it is time to review the story:

"Once upon a time and a very good time it was," an ant, under a misguided delusion—he thought he was a hippo—was made sole mediator between the wardens and animals of the zoo.

In order to live up to their reputation, the bears had a picnic and invited another group of innocuous animals. All the animals—except the stags—danced, and pretty soon—as will happen at picnics—it began to rain. At this point, some of the animals began to squeal at all the bears for causing the outburst.

Upon hearing the squeals, the deluded ant intervened. During the course of intervention, however, he picked up some of the crumbs that had been trod upon, rained under, hashed over, and were already full of filth. He used these because he was not big enough to avoid them. Equipped with the foul crumbs in his mouth, the little ant condemned the picnic. Because the ant could not stand upright with the heaviness in his mouth, he was eventually squashed.

GAIL ROTH

TO THE EDITOR:

Who is William Rosenblum? The organization, Young Americans for Freedom, has had a chapter on the U. B. campus since 1961. Renaissance, a conservative journal, has been published every year and contains the editor's and faculty advisor's names.

Mr. Rosenblum has shown his ignorance first, by not addressing his question to the appropriate source and secondly by considering any relation between conservatism and fascism. If he were to start with Y.A.F., plod his way through the moderate, then the liberal organizations he may come to a fascist group on this campus.

JOSEPH E. T. KEATING,
EDITOR OF RENAISSANCE

TO THE EDITOR:

I noted a letter in The Scribe containing an implication that a campus organization was fascist. This kind of allusion, without a shred of proof, is just as objectionable as the flimsy innuendoes that seek to impugn the patriotism of other individuals with the taint of communism.

If this writer had any evidence of fascist activities, he should have stated them. It is possible to contest ideas without resorting to these tactics.

While the writer of that letter appears to be expressing an individual opinion, it should be noted that a very bad example is being set for students when an approved campus organization resorts to such tactics, or when a professor who acts as advisor to such a campus organization lends his name to such innuendoes, or worse yet, attempts to make it appear as though the University endorses this kind of thing.

PROF. A. B. ASCH,
COLL. OF ENGINEERING

TO THE EDITOR:

Discussion heard among individuals and groups on campus concerning recent events in Selma, Alabama, reveals strong feelings of sympathy for the civil rights movement.

The newly-formed N.A.A.C.P. committee on campus feels that each person's thinking on the subject of prejudice could write a short essay, and a collection of these essays would stand in the nature of a response of University students to the events of our times.

The American society looks to the student body of today not only for its future leaders, but also for the knowledgeable individuals who will support the American ideals of freedom, liberty and social justice for all. Our country stands at the crossroads. Many voices have been heard. Will the voice of the UB student join these, including our president, who see a brighter future for our society along the road to freedom?

The N.A.A.C.P. committee announces an essay contest open to all University students. The regulations of the contest are:

1. Not more than 1,000 or less than 500 typewritten words.
2. Not necessarily confined to anti-Negro prejudice but any minority group.
3. Open to all students at UB full or part-time.
4. Submitted to Student Center reception desk between now and May 1.
5. Criteria to be used by judges.
6. Panel of judges meets Monday, May 4, winner announced May 11.
7. Judges: Joyce Quintine, Bill Tinkler, Barbara Watts, Prof. Rachel Ranis and three additional faculty members.
8. Prize: Pictorial History of the Negro in the U.S. by Landston — Hughes.
9. Understanding of Prejudice
 - a) Understanding of Prejudice (causes and cures)
 - b) Originality
 - c) Style of Presentation

All these essays will be placed in a book and an appropriate place will be found in the Carlson library or where it will be accessible to students and faculty.

The University concert choir's annual Spring Concert will be presented on Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. in the social room of the Student Center.

The 50-voice choir will present the concert free and open to the public. Now in its 11th year under the direction of its founder, Professor W. Earl Sauerwein, the choir includes students from all colleges and divisions within the University.

The first portion of the concert will include three works by Randall Thompson: "The Last Words of David," "The Best of Rooms" and "The Gate of Heaven."

The second portion will be devoted to lighter choral works, including: "Tanzen and Springen," a belette madrigal; two spirituals, "My Soul's Gonna Rise Again" and "Dere's No Hidin' Place Down There;" and several selections from "Oliver."

Because the regular Advisor-Advisee meetings scheduled for Wednesday, March 24, were cancelled due to the Jacoby Lecture, all students except graduating seniors are to make individual appointments with their advisors before April 14.

It is necessary that students meet with their advisors to discuss assignments to the proper advisor for next fall, course selection for the fall semester and information on summer school courses, special departmental requirements, and Selective Service information.

Rev. William S. Hincks, executive director of the Greater Bridgeport Council of Churches, will conduct the Student Christian Association-sponsored Communion service in the Carlson Library Cultural Center at 11 a.m. Sunday.

The Parents' Association recently allocated a total of $3,300 for campus projects and organizations.

The grants allocated included: Halsey Symposium, $2,000; Student Personnel Revolving Fund, $500; Convocation Program, $500; International Relations Club, $300; and the television in the Health Center, $200.

The University debating team finished fourth last weekend in the Second Annual Albertus Magnus Debate Tourney, comprised of teams from New England, New York, and New Jersey schools.

ORS Asks Review

In answer to this, Doolittle said that Omega Sigma Rho was given a seat on the Council Court, but under an amendment passed by the IFC Council on February 21, a fraternity being accused of a charge or charges has neither a vote nor a seconding power.

On point four of the second petition, which OSR submitted as taking the place of point four on the first petition and which claims there is new and additional evidence since the court hearing, Doolittle said that this cannot be a reason for convening the Supreme Court Council because new evidence is not under the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court Council.

Doolittle also said that OSR claims new evidence but will not disclose such evidence to him.

"They say that they have witnesses from the party who they want to bring forth to testify," explained Doolittle. "I would assume that these witnesses are members of OSR. I interviewed a minimum of nine members and they stated that they saw no evil, heard no evil and did no evil. I also asked the past president of OSR, Pete Carroll, to speak to members of OSR for additional information on the case and two days later he told me that he had talked to most of the brothers in the fraternity and that they said they had seen nothing."

In commenting on point five of the new petition, Doolittle said that members of the IFC at their latest meeting last Sunday expressed their feelings of unhappiness with the hearing's procedure and the need for both a written and more improved court procedure.

"I hope the IFC will correct the faults which exist in current court procedure," said Doolittle. "We all know there are faults, but court procedure is not written in the IFC Constitution."

Under the IFC Constitution, OSR can now appeal the IFC punishment to President Littlefield or the Acting President of the University, but only after "a reasonable time has elapsed between the rendering of a Fraternity council decision and the consideration by the Supreme Council."

First ORS Petition

Omega Sigma Rho Fraternity hereby submits, to the Inter-Fraternity Council, this petition of exposition and protest of the Inter-Fraternity Council's adjudication of the said organization. We present in the following summation the numerous inconsistencies pertaining to the procedure and testimony which were used to render this verdict.

1. There were definite deviations, disregard, and infractions of the Constitution and By-laws of the Inter-Fraternity Council.

a) Violation of Article 3, Section 12. This section emphatically states that the maximum penalty for any offense shall include monetary fine and/or social probation which entails the curtailment of all public social activities for not more than two semesters. A penalty of the loss of pledge class was imposed on Omega Sigma Rho.

b) Violation of Article 1, Section 2, Point 4 of the Amendments. Only representatives and alternates should sit on the fraternity council court. The president of Beta Gamma Sorority was accorded the privilege of a chair even though she is neither their representative nor their alternate.

2. Omega Sigma Rho was presented with a statement of charges from undisclosed sources. The stated reason for this preclusion of names was the fear of possible repercussions toward the individuals who furnished testimony. If these statements are to be considered valid, it is only appropriate that the persons making the allegations present their accounts at the actual hearing, so Council can evaluate their testimony as an entity rather than entrusting the responsibility to the faculty advisor. Furthermore, if these statements are substantiated by fact, there should be no reason for fear of repercussions.

3. Since testimony was solicited from Beta Gamma Sorority, their ballot should be declared null and void.

4. Omega Sigma Rho's opportunity to defend itself against the accusations was truncated in consideration of the time element, then the Council proceeded to determine the question of innocence or guilt.

We, the brothers of Omega Sigma Rho, believe that the decision and the punitive measures invoked by the Inter-Fraternity Council towards us, are totally unjust and warrant reconsideration by the Supreme Council of the Inter-Fraternity Council."

Second Petition

The following is the second petition of protest which OSR submitted on Tuesday. Point four was substituted for point four on the first petition.

"1-c. Violation of Article 3, Section 3 of constitution. This provision states that the Fraternity Council Court shall consist of as many judges as there be member fraternities of the Council at the time of sitting. Omega Sigma Rho was denied their constitutional privilege of being seated on Council Court.

4. There has been new and additional evidence obtained since the last hearing.

5. A letter of protest submitted by one of the Fraternity Council Court members who was present at the hearing states that the procedure was incorrect and that there was insufficient evidence to deliver a guilty verdict."

The 'Rooftop Singers' Replace 'Brothers Four'

It will be "The Rooftop Singers" and Woody Allen for spring entertainment on April 10 instead of "The Brothers Four" and Allen. One of the members of "The Brothers Four" has come down with a case of mononucleosis and the Student Council and Student Center Board, co-sponsors of the event, obtained "The Rooftop Singers" as a last minute substitute. Tickets, to be priced at $2 will be going on sale next week in the lounge outside the Student Center cafeteria.

French Singers Here Saturday

Varel and Bailly Company, Chanteurs de Paris, will bring a repertoire of folk and popular songs to the social room of the Student Center this Saturday at 8 p.m.

Andre Varel and Charly Bailly, an internationally known song-writing team, are known as the "Rodgers and Hammerstein of France." They are joined by six other Gallic gentlemen to form a singing octet.

Tickets are available at the receptionist desk in the Student Center. The price is 75 cents for students, $1 for faculty, and $2 for area residents.

IS EUROPE?

College life is such a busy one, what with learning the Maxima, attending public executions, and walking our cheetahs, that perforce we find ourselves sometimes neglecting our studies. Therefore this column, normally a vehicle for innocent tomfoolery, will occasionally forego levity to offer a quick survey course in one of the learned disciplines. Today, for an opener, we will discuss Modern European History.

Strictly defined, Modern European History covers the history of Europe from January 1, 1964, to the present. However, in order to provide employment for more teachers, the course has been moved back to the Age of Pericles, or the Renaissance, as it is better known as.

The single most important fact to remember about Modern European History is the emergence of Prussia. As we all know, Prussia was originally called Russia. The "P" was purchased from Persia in 1874 for $24 and Manhattan Island. This later became known as Guy Fawkes Day.

Persia without a "P" was of course called Ersia. This so embarrassed the natives that they changed the name of the country to Iran. This led to a rash of name changing. Mesopotamia became Iraq, Schleswig-Holstein became Saxe-Coburg, Bosnia-Herzegovina became Cleveland. There was even talk about changing the name of stable old England, but it was forgotten when the little princes escaped from the Tower and invented James Watt. This later became known as the Missouri Compromise.

Only last week he invented the German short-haired pointer.

Meanwhile Johann Gutenberg was quietly inventing the printing press, for which we may all be grateful, believe you me. Why grateful? I'll tell you why: Because without Gutenberg's invention you would not have this newspaper to read and you might never learn that Personna Stainless Steel Razor Blades are now available in two varieties—the regular double-edge blade we have all come to know and love, and the new Personna Injector Blade. Users of injector razors have grown morose in recent years, even sullen, and who can blame them? How would you feel if you were denied the speed and comfort and durability and truth and beauty of Personna Stainless Steel shaving? Not very jolly, I'll wager! But injector shavers may now rejoice—indeed all shavers may—for whether you remove your whiskers regularly or injectively, there is a Personna blade for you—a Personna Stainless Steel Blade which will give you more luxury shaves than Beep-Beep or any other brand you might name. If by chance you don't agree, the makers of Personna will gladly buy you a pack of any brand you think is better.

Yes, friends, we may all be grateful to Johann Gutenberg for inventing the means to spread this great news about Personna. The next time you're in Frankfurt-am-Main, why don't you drop in and say thanks to Mr. Gutenberg? He is elderly—408 years last birthday—but still quite active in his laboratory. Only last week he invented the German short-haired pointer.

But I digress. Returning to Modern European History, let us now examine that ever-popular favorite, France.

France, as we all know, is divided into several Departments. There is the Police Department, the Fire Department, the Gas and Water Department, and the Bureau of Weights and Measures. There is also Madame Pompadour, but that is a dirty story and is taught only to graduate students.

Finally we take up Italy—the newest European nation. Italy did not become a unified state until 1848 when Garibaldi, Cavour, and Victor Emmanuel threw three coins in the Trevi Fountain. This lovely gesture so enchanted all of Europe that Metternich traded Parma to Talleyrand for Mad Ludwig of Bavaria. Then everybody waltzed till dawn and then, tired but happy, they started the Thirty Years War. This later became known as Pitt the Younger.

Space does not permit me to tell you any more about Modern European History. Aren't you glad?
